A message from our Spiritual Leader,
Rabbi Mark Elber

Every One Counts!

As I write this, it's less than a week away from the first night of Chanukah. Yesterday, Sunday, was our monthly movie at which a group of about twenty of us greatly enjoyed the film "Deli Man," a surprisingly entertaining picture about the history of Jewish delis in the United States and some of the current ones that uphold the tradition of the classic Jewish deli. The film evoked a lot of laughter and recognition of our own experiences at Jewish delis. Luckily we preceded the screening of the film with a kosher deli lunch of our own, which was really delicious. Otherwise the film would have rendered us ravenous. People's overall reaction was that the day was a wonderful experience to share as a community.

I remember back in the late 1970's when I was living in Manhattan, reading an article that referred to "gastronomical Judaism," an expression I found quite clever and amusing at the time. As much as I loved traditional Jewish foods, I didn't realize the depth to which a connection to those foods could go. Memories are often stored in our bodies and powerfully brought back via our senses such as taste and smell. It's striking how a taste of matzah ball soup or latkes can bring back a flood of memories that often go straight to the heart, and I'm not referring to heartburn, but rather to the warmth that can be associated with special occasions, even if the special occasion was merely coming in from a frigid winter Sunday evening in Manhattan for a warm meal at the Second Avenue Deli after waiting on line for twenty minutes to finally be seated. There was an emotional warmth to the place as well as to the dishes.

At the height of the Jewish deli in the United States, around the 1930's, there were 1,500 Jewish delis in New York City alone. Today there are approximately 150 in the entire United States. That's right, one-tenth the number in the whole of the United States of what was once the number in New York City alone. Of course, that's not the only thing that's changed. In those days downtown Second Avenue was also the home of Yiddish theater with 20-30 shows a night in the Yiddish theater district. George Gershwin (named Jacob Gershwon on his birth certificate, though his family name was originally Gershowitz) and his older brother Ira Gershwin (born Israel Gershowitz) grew up on Second Avenue between Fifth and Sixth Street. Irving Berlin (born Israel Baline) also grew up in the same Jewish Theatre neighborhood in a Yiddish speaking home. In that era there were a number of daily Yiddish newspapers published in New York City, the best known of which, the Forverts, had a peak circulation of over 275,000. Now there is a weekly English language Forward that has replaced it. The Yiddish Forverts was primarily a Democratic Socialist paper as opposed to the other Yiddish papers which were farther to the left.

After World War II the popularity of Yiddish theater began to wane. There has been a slight revival of interest in Yiddish culture here in the United States which started in the late 1960's. YIVO's intensive Yiddish summer program began in 1968 in cooperation with Columbia University (I took it in 1978 and 1979), and there has been a significant revival of Klezmer music. However outside the ultra-Orthodox communities, Yiddish is barely spoken. The history of Yiddish in America, and of Jewish delis too, says a lot about the evolution of Jewish culture here. As the great Irish poet William Butler Yeats phrased it: "the center cannot hold." Jews have moved away from the center, i.e. from Conservative Judaism, towards Orthodoxy or Reform. Modern Orthodoxy, that is the more tolerant and moderate expressions of Orthodoxy, like the Young Israel movement which was the style of synagogue I grew up attending, is shrinking in comparison to the more extreme forms of Orthodoxy. Conservative Judaism, which for decades was by far the most popular movement in the United States, is slowly becoming the smallest.

I believe people are hungry – not just for deli, but for powerful expressions and practices of Judaism too. In this overwhelmingly material world, I believe people recognize that their inner lives need to be fed and cultivated also. Yes, our time and attention have many demands made on them, but as Hillel said 2,000 years ago: "Don't say when I have leisure, I will study, perhaps you will never have leisure." The days can go by in a blur. The quality of our lives is constructed from innumerable small actions which sometimes lead to huge moments, but more often than not simply accrue over the years, creating the larger picture. Who would think when eating a deli sandwich and a dill pickle that we were partaking of part of our culture that would call back to us decades later?!

Our experiences are complex in the ways they affect our emotions, our intellects, our senses, and in the ways in which they set the stage for futures that we cannot predict. Just as we could not predict the diminishing prevalence of Yiddish culture and the Jewish deli, who could have predicted the amazing revival of the Hebrew language with over six million native speakers today?!! Who could have predicted the establishment of the State of Israel? Only a handful of true visionaries. Though I am no prophet, nor the son of a prophet, I am convinced that we have a long and vital history ahead of us which depends on us. Judaism and Jewishness belong to those who commit themselves to them, and the shapes they will take will be determined, to some degree, on the ways in which we commit ourselves to them. Every one of us counts. Each time a person attends a class, a service, makes a donation, or does anything related to Temple Beth El, Judaism, or Jewishness it matters and contributes to our present and our future.

On behalf of Shoshana, Lev, and myself I'd like to wish everyone a happy and healthy secular new year.

Rabbi Mark Elber

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

It saddens me greatly that we lost three more valued members of our Temple family; Myron Wilner, Gary Reitzas and Barry Novek. It also worries me as it makes me realize just how fast our congregation is shrinking. We are very fortunate that we have an endowment fund, set up and funded by a number of forward-thinking and generous members over the years. What is unfortunate is that we require more to cover our operating expenses than the interest earned on the funds, so we are chipping away at the principal each year. As things stand, we should be fine for a while, but if we lose the rent on the school building we may have to consider alternatives.

We have recently reached an agreement with Oppenheimer & Co on High Street and Waring Sullivan Funeral Home on Locust Street to make a total of 30 parking spots available for the employees of the preschool. The lack of parking has been a major obstacle in negotiating a renewal of our lease with People Incorporated, so these new arrangements will be a big help. Please note - parking placards are required to park in those lots. The good news for us is that it is much easier to find parking with 30 fewer cars on the street!

Once again our cemetery caretaker, Tommy Filipovich, has gone above and beyond. As he usually does, he opened a grave the day before one of our funerals, and he came upon a rock...a really big rock...and after much digging, it turned out to be a two-ton boulder. After much work and a cracked bucket on his excavator he was able to remove it whole and put it in his truck to cart away. My sincere thanks to Tommy not just for taking care of this situation, but for the wonderful job he does year-round taking care of our cemetery.

*Steve Silverman
President*

Sisterhood President's Message

As I prepare this message I, like the rest of us, am in the process of getting ready for Chanukah. This afternoon we enjoyed a pre-Chanukah deli lunch, followed by a terrific movie called "Deli Man." It was a wonderful way to spend a rainy Sunday afternoon. I want to thank Elaine Reback and Beverly Solup for helping me to put this together. And I must also thank Cantor Shoshana and Rabbi Mark for picking out such enjoyable movies. Our movie Sundays are proving to be a popular attraction. I'm now looking forward to seeing what January's selection will be.

Let me also thank Cantor Shoshana and Rabbi Mark for opening up their home to us for Temple Beth El's annual Chanukah party. They are so very gracious. I'm sure that those folks who were able to attend enjoyed themselves.

On Wednesday, January 18th at 10:30 am the Book Club will be discussing "Remember Us" by Martin Small and Vic Shayne. So pick it up ladies, and start reading. It's good for a cold winter's day or night.

So until next month, keep warm and safe. Shalom folks.

*Libby Cohen
Sisterhood President*

Sisterhood Gift Shop

Do keep our gift shop in mind when looking for Judaica merchandise--we have a wonderful selection and, in some situations, I can special order. Our prices are lower than Judaica stores.

I've reordered N.E. Patriots and Red Sox mezuzot ($28) as well as the black suede Patriots kipa ($15). Our Temple Beth El mezuzah ($15) continues to get rave reviews.

Generally, I am at the Monday morning class, or you can call or email me to schedule an appointment. Also, if you do not live in the area, I will gladly mail your order to you. HAPPY NEW YEAR!

Cantor Shoshana's News & Notes

As you can see from the photos on page 8, the end of November brought with it a unique multicultural women's "New Moon" celebration in New Bedford. In addition to Cantor Shoshana's chanting of the Blessing for the New Moon and her blowing the shofar, two other TBE members were in attendance: Sylvia Eisner and Cindy Yoken. The purpose of this gathering was to foster multicultural appreciation and friendship. Judging by the success of the event, I think it went a long ways towards that goal. I learned a lot about our indigenous peoples, the Wampanoags, including the fact that they are reviving their original language to be spoken and written after a long period of disuse...sound familiar?

After all the end-of-October and early-November events, we needed the relative quiet of December around TBE to catch our breath! Sadly, however, there have been quite a few leave-takings and funerals of some of our long-standing members: We send out our deepest condolences to Charlotte Fradkin, Iris Katzman, Marion Wilner, Lois Reitzas and Meryl Novek for the losses of their beloved husbands: Irving, Harold, Myron, Gary and Barry. As I visited these houses of mourning, I had a glimpse into how vibrant, creative, and groundbreaking in many ways our community was in its heyday...but children move away, populations change, nothing stays the same, and gradually we learn to adapt to the new reality.

On this note, it was fascinating to watch the documentary Deli Man – we had a crowd on Dec. 18th of about 20 folks who gathered for a deli lunch (thanks to Libby Cohen and Elaine Reback for picking up the kosher deli meats, sodas, chips, and all the trimmings!), and afterwards we heartily enjoyed this nostalgic trip down "schmaltz lane." It turns out that just as shuls all over the country have been closing their doors, or merging with other congregations, so kosher delis have been disappearing from the North American scene (in New York City alone, the film noted, there were once over 1,500 kosher or kosher-style delis; today there are about two dozen left, and all over North America the trend is towards their disappearance). This is why it is so important for us to come together, however small our numbers, to enjoy our camaraderie, a movie, learning, share a meal, say some prayers, sing some songs (please mark your calendars for our Friday night Feb. 10th Tu biShevat Seder) and go out to do an act of tikkun olam – to "repair the world" through acts of justice and loving kindness...will Jewish families once again move to the Fall River area? It is hard to say, but nonetheless it is crucial that we do our best to make this world a safer, healthier, more just place for all its inhabitants. Wishing you all a fabulous 2017!

Cantor Shoshana

Everyone knows the plot of "Yentl," even if you have (still!) not seen this 1983 Jewish movie-classic. Starring Barbra Streisand, Mandy Patinkin, Amy Irving, and Nehemiah Persoff, the singing is divine...what could be bad? Roger Ebert wrote in his 1983 review: "At one time or another, almost everyone has wanted to do something and been told they couldn't, and almost everyone has loved the wrong person for the right reason. That's the emotional ground that 'Yentl' covers, and it always has its heart in the right place." Not to be missed!

ADULT EDUCATION AT TBE

Multi-Cultural New Moon Program

On Monday, Nov. 28th, Cantor Shoshana, along with two of our members, Sylvia Eisner and Cindy Yoken, took part in a "Multi-Cultural New Moon Program," organized by Rona Trachtenberg and Rachel Levinson, president of the New Bedford chapter of the National Council of Jewish Women, along with Maya Lim, Human Services Coordinator for Community Education and Diversity for the City of New Bedford. This women's-only event brought out a rainbow of women of many faiths and cultures. Pictured above from left to right are: Sarah Fuhro, teacher of Celtic and Druid traditions; Kerri Anne Helme and her daughter-in-law Dawn Blake Souza, both members of the Mashpee Wampanoag tribe and teachers of Wampanoag culture and language; Rachel Levinson; Maya Lim; Isha Kharrubi, secretary of the UMass Dartmouth Islamic Student Association; Rona Trachtenberg; and Cantor Shoshana. Temple Beth El member Cindy Yoken experiences an Islamic women's tradition associated with the festival of Eid al Fitr, the holiday of the sighting of the New Moon of the month of Shawwal, closing the month of Rammadan-fasting. Islamic women like to beautify themselves for this holiday, which includes painting henna tattoo patterns on one another's hands.
